

A photograph of a winter forest at night or dusk. The sky is a vibrant green, filled with numerous small white stars. The foreground is a dark, snow-covered ground. In the background, there is a dense line of tall evergreen trees, their branches heavily laden with white snow. The overall atmosphere is mysterious and ethereal.

Dimension

PARAM SHAH

Dimension

Karam

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Hi, I'm Param Shah, a dedicated and innovative middle school student in Class 8 at Reliance Foundation School Surat. My passion lies in technology and creativity, and I am deeply involved in game development, coding, and robotics.

Books By Param Shah-

ALEX AND MAYA:

THE TRIP TO SPACE

THE FORGOTTEN MISSION

CHAPTER 1:

The Accident and

Awakening

The sun was setting as the boy and his parents drove through the countryside, the soft hum of the car made the boy feel at peace. But suddenly, everything changed. There was a loud screech, a flash of headlights, and then a terrible crash. The boy's world went dark.

When he opened his eyes again, he wasn't in the car anymore. Instead, he found himself lying on the soft ground of an unfamiliar farm. The sky above him wasn't the familiar blue; instead, it was a strange greenish, and the air smelled different.

He sat up and looked around, calling out for his parents, but there was no answer.

The boy began to wander the farm, desperate and starving. His body ached as he searched for any sign of life. After what felt like hours, he saw a farmhouse in the distance. He stumbled toward it, hoping to find help.

When he reached the door, he knocked. It creaked open slowly, revealing figures that weren't human. The beings inside had long limbs, glowing eyes, and skin that shimmered under the dim light. They were aliens.

CHAPTER 2:

The Alien

Family

Terrified at first, the boy recoiled, unsure if these creatures were friend or foe. But the aliens didn't attack him. Instead, they gestured for him to come inside, speaking in a language he couldn't understand.

Despite his fear, the boy was too hungry and weak to refuse. He stepped into the warmth of the farmhouse and was greeted with food, a strange but nourishing meal that eased his hunger.

As days passed, the boy's strength returned, and with it, questions. Where was he? What had happened to his parents? Why were these aliens helping him?

Slowly, with the help of the aliens and their basic form of communication, he learned the truth.

The accident hadn't just taken his parents' lives; it had sent him to a parallel universe. The aliens revealed that he was no longer on Earth but in a world connected to his own through a mysterious force.

They told him about the Heart of the Worlds, an ancient entity that connected all dimensions. It was powerful, and somehow, the boy had a connection to it.

The accident had awakened this connection, making him the Guardian of the Heart.

CHAPTER 3:

The Heart of the Worlds

The boy spent more time with the aliens, learning about their world and the Heart of the Worlds. The Heart, they explained, wasn't just an object; it was a living force, one that maintained balance across every dimension. Without it, the multiverse would fall into chaos.

As the boy grew closer to the aliens, they shared a secret with him – the Heart was in danger. Dark forces were rising, seeking to harness its power for their own purposes. The balance was starting to shift, and cracks between dimensions were beginning to appear.

If something wasn't done, the multiverse could collapse.

One night, as the boy slept, he had a vivid dream. In the dream, he saw the Heart of the Worlds, a massive, glowing entity floating in the sky with life of all verses. But surrounding it was a shadow – a dark figure reaching out, trying to corrupt its power.

The boy woke up with a start, sweat dripping down his face. He knew now that his connection to the Heart meant he had a role to play. Ignoring it was not an option.

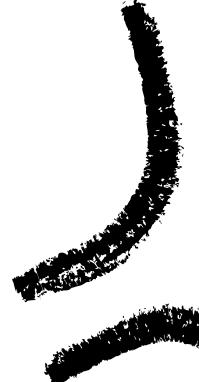

CHAPTER 4:

Zoran's Arrival

The boy didn't have to wait long before his fears became reality. One evening, as the sun set on the alien farm, a powerful figure appeared in the sky.

His name was Zoran, and he was unlike anything the boy had ever seen. Zoran had been watching the boy's rise and now sought to claim the Heart for himself. A master of dark energy, Zoran's goal was simple – to control the Heart and reshape the multiverse according to his twisted vision.

Zoran arrived at the farm, and his presence filled the air with tension. The boy, though terrified, knew he couldn't back down.

The aliens had prepared him as best they could, but now it was time for him to face reality.

With their guidance, the boy channelled the Heart's power within him, feeling its energy pulse through his veins.

The battle that followed was fierce. Zoran's dark energy seemed unstoppable. His attacks tore through the fabric of the dimension, warping reality itself. The boy fought back, drawing on the Heart's power, but Zoran's strength was overwhelming.

Just when it seemed like all hope was lost, something within the boy awakened – a deep, hidden power tied to the Heart. With a final, desperate burst of energy, he unleashed a wave of light that drove Zoran back to its dark shadow. For now, the boy had won. But he knew this was just the beginning.

CHAPTER 5:

Alliens in the

Multiverse

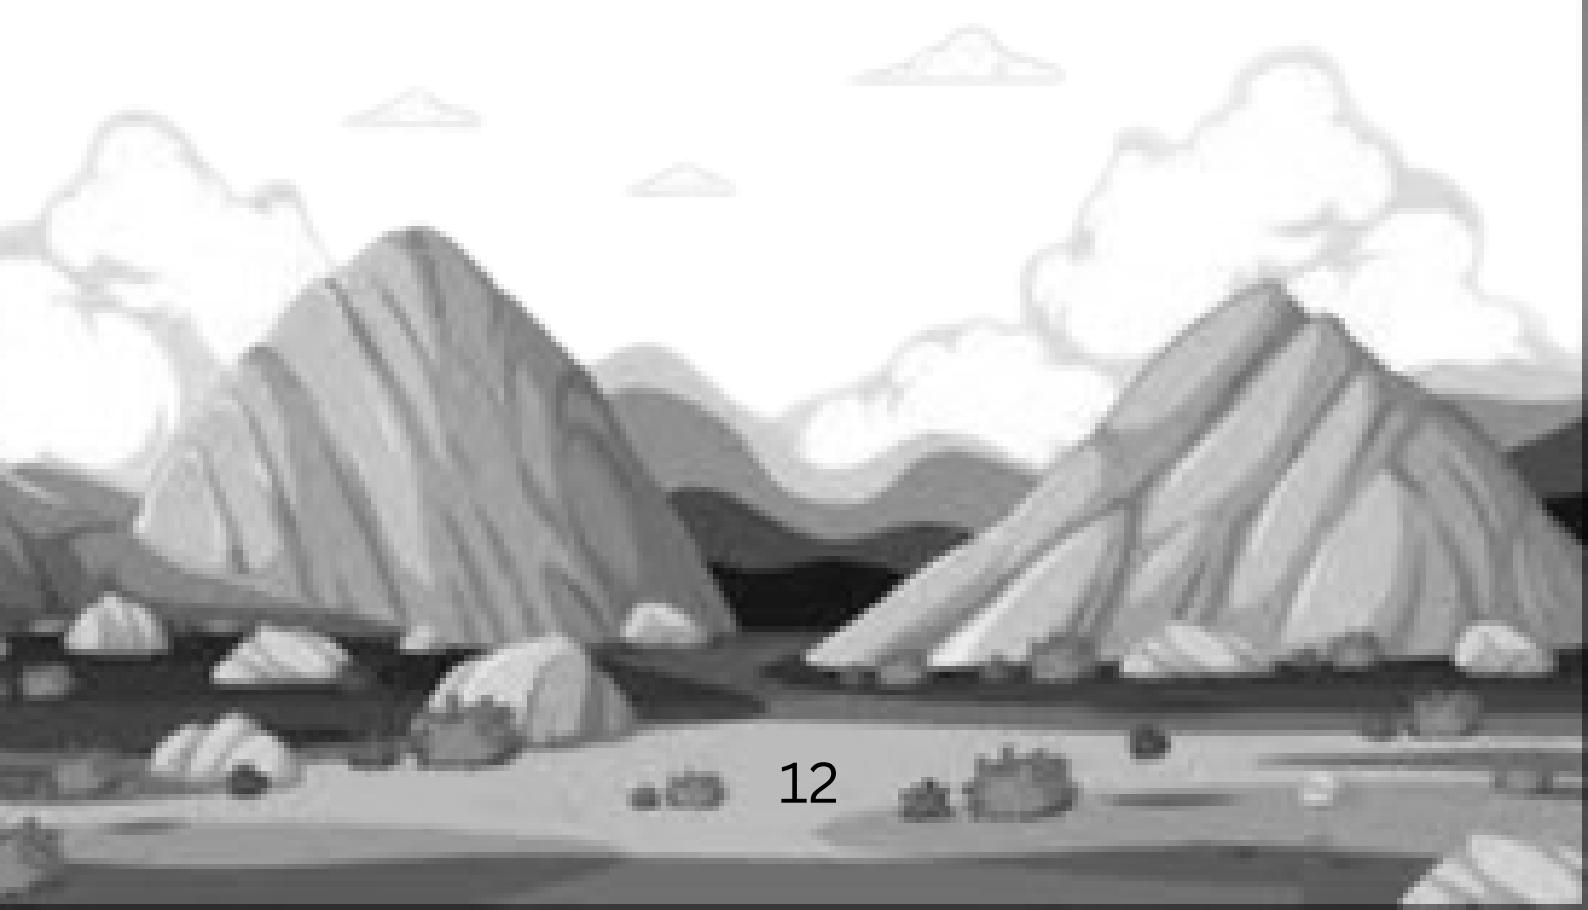

After Zoran's defeat, the boy began to understand the true scope of his responsibility. The multiverse was vast, and the Heart connected countless worlds. He wasn't the only protector out there. Through the Heart, he could feel the presence of others – beings from different dimensions who had also been chosen to protect their worlds.

The boy reached out across the multiverse, forming connections with these other protectors. Each was unique – some were powerful warriors, others wielded ancient magic, and some were beings of pure energy.

Together, they formed a network of allies, each committed to maintaining the balance of their respective dimensions.

The boy found solace in these new friendships. He wasn't alone in this fight anymore.

But even as they celebrated their victory over Zoran, a new threat began to stir.

CHAPTER 6:

The Void

Far beyond the reach of any dimension, in a place known only as the Void, something dark and ancient watched the boy's every move. Serak, the guardian of the Void, had been watching from the shadows. Unlike Zoran, Serak wasn't interested in controlling the Heart – he wanted to destroy it.

Serak believed that the Heart's existence limited the true potential of the multiverse. In his eyes, chaos was the natural state of all things, and by breaking the Heart's chains, he could release the multiverse into true freedom.

One night, Serak appeared before the boy in a dream, his presence cold and menacing. “You think defeating Zoran was the end?” Serak whispered. “You’ve only begun to understand the true nature of the multiverse. The Heart is a prison, and I will shatter it.”

The boy awoke, his heart pounding. He knew Serak was far more dangerous than Zoran ever was. If Serak succeeded, everything – every dimension, every world – would unravel into chaos.

CHAPTER 7:

The Battle For

Balance

Determined to stop Serak, the boy rallied his allies across dimensions. They prepared for a confrontation unlike any they had faced before. Serak was no ordinary enemy — he could manipulate the very fabric of reality itself.

As the boy and his allies traveled through the multiverse, they saw the effects of Serak's influence. Dimensions were beginning to crack, and reality itself was unraveling.

The final battle took place in the Void, a realm where the laws of physics didn't apply. Time twisted, space folded in on itself, and the boy had to rely entirely on his connection to the Heart to navigate the chaos. Serak's power was overwhelming, and for a moment, it seemed like he might succeed in destroying the Heart.

But the boy had something Serak didn't – unity. With the help of his allies, the boy channeled the power of every Heart in the multiverse, their combined energy forming a barrier against Serak's chaos. In a final, desperate attack, they overwhelmed Serak, trapping him in the Void for eternity.

CHAPTER 8:

A World Restored

With Serak defeated, the boy returned to his alien family. The multiverse had been saved, but the boy knew his journey wasn't over. There would always be new threats, new challenges, and new worlds to protect. But now, he wasn't alone. He had allies in every dimension, and the Heart of the Worlds was stronger than ever.

As the boy looked up at the green sky of his new home, he felt a sense of peace. He had become the Guardian of the Multiverse, and he was ready for whatever came next.

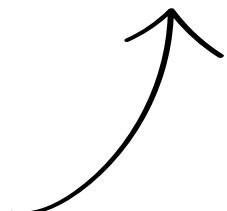

CHAPTER 9:

A New Call

Just as the boy was beginning to relax, the Heart pulsed within him once more. A vision appeared before his eyes – a new world in danger. This time, it was a futuristic city, its buildings made of crystal, with strange energy pulsing through its streets. The Heart of this world was weakening, flickering like a dying star.

Without hesitation, the boy gathered his strength. The multiverse still needed him. He opened a portal to the new world and stepped through, ready to face whatever new danger awaited him.

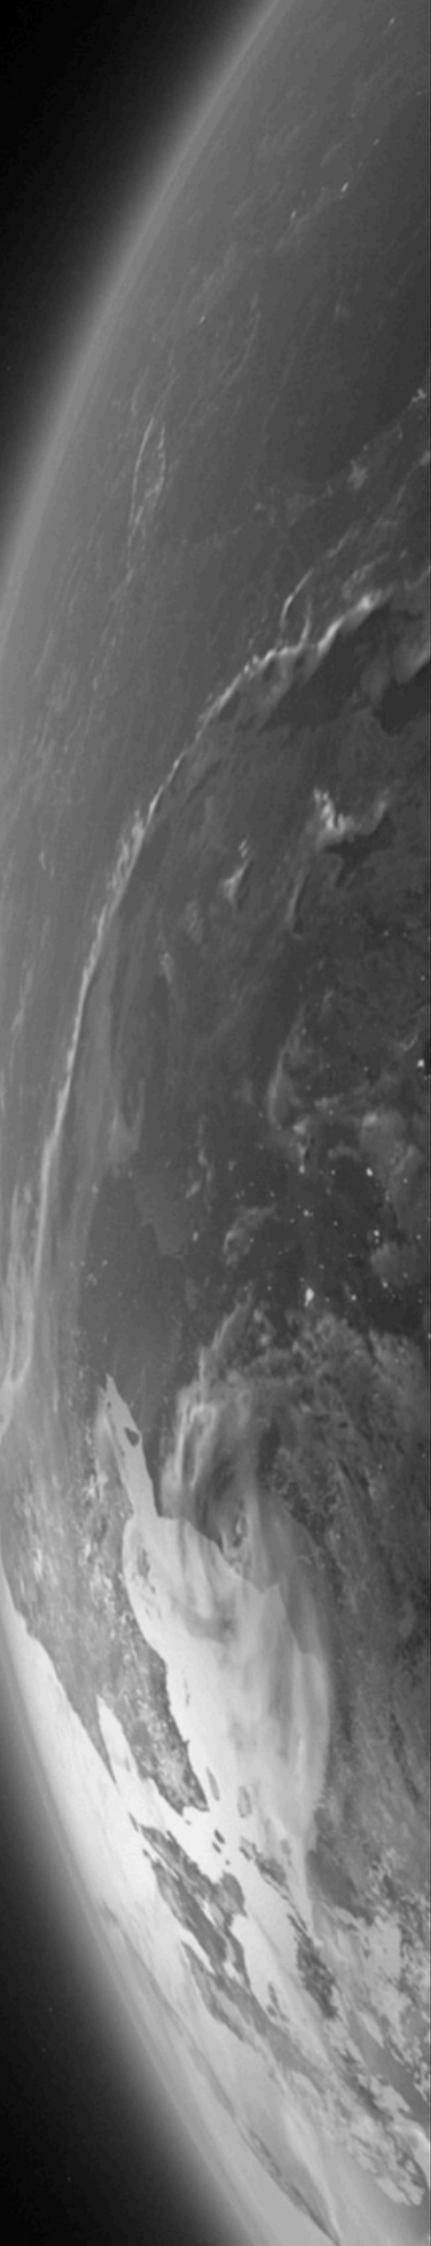

CHAPTER 10:

The Guardian's Promise

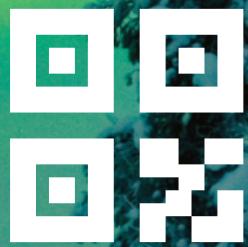

As the boy entered the futuristic city, he was greeted by its protector, a man named Kael. Together, they raced to stop a group of rogue scientists who had captured the Heart of the city and were trying to use its power for their own gain.

The boy fought alongside Kael, and together, they defeated the scientists and restored the Heart to its rightful place. But as the boy stood in the glow of the restored Heart, he knew his journey would never truly be over

After a car accident kills him and his parents, a boy is reborn in a parallel universe. He discovers he's the Guardian of the Heart of the Worlds, a powerful entity connecting all dimensions. With dark forces threatening the multiverse, he battles to restore balance and protect the Heart.

SCAN TO GET
E-BOOK

CODE : 090711

WRITTEN BY PARAM SHAH

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED ©

PRINTED IN INDIA